Regional Event Directors (REDS)

At Black Everywhere, we believe leadership should be accessible to everyone, especially those historically excluded from traditional paths to influence. Through our unique model, we empower Regional Event Directors (REDS)—volunteer hosts who create meaningful local gatherings. Whether it's a wellness walk, potluck, museum visit, or panel discussion, REDs bring people together through their lived experiences, ensuring that each event is culturally affirming, inclusive, and impactful.

Instead of complex applications or time-intensive programs, REDs undergo a simple, comprehensive training focused on proven best practices for creating inclusive spaces. After submitting event ideas, our team takes care of logistics, marketing, and promotional materials, allowing REDs to focus on building culture and connection within their communities.

BE Well: Health and Wellness

A no-cost, 6-week wellness accountability program for individuals seeking structure and consistency. This rigorous program requires daily commitment, with six meetings a week and mandatory camera participation. Ideal for those seeking high-level accountability and support for physical and mental health.

Flow by BE Well: Flexible Wellness

For those seeking flexibility, Flow by BE Well offers a more laid-back approach with weekly meetings. This option is perfect for those who still want community support but need a schedule that fits their life. Like the traditional BE Well program, Flow by BE Well is free of charge.

BE Collective: Entrepreneur Support

A supportive community for Black entrepreneurs to connect, share resources, and build businesses. This program is free to join but requires a small contribution in the form of raffle prizes to foster engagement and commitment.

Our Founder: Jamaica Aali

Jamaica Aali, the founder of Black Everywhere, created the organization with the goal of building spaces of belonging for those who have been excluded. Raised in South Los Angeles, Jamaica's experiences navigating predominantly white spaces shaped her deep commitment to fostering community connection. What began as a small book club has grown into a global movement impacting over 20,000 people.

Jamaica's journey is driven by the belief that opportunity and belonging can transform lives. Through Black Everywhere, she continues to create a world where people come together in joy, trust, and community.
